EX-QUEEN LIL'S CLAIM.

She Wants the United States to Pay Her $200,000.

SA. FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—It is stated on what appears to be good authority that the errand of W. A. Wideman of Honolulu to this country is for the purpose of commencing a damage suit against the United States on behalf of the ex-queen of Hawaii. The amount of damage asked for is $200,000, and the friends of the ex-queen declare that this government has been instrumental in mulcting her to fully that amount.

Her claim is that the provisional government could never have been established and herself deposed had it not been for the unwarranted action of a recognized agent of the United States, the captain of the warship Boston, which action was subsequently formally disavowed by the president.

Whatever Mr. Wideman's mission is, his departure from Honolulu was kept a profound secret until almost the moment of sailing, when he suddenly appeared on the dock and secured passage. Within a few days he will go on to Washington, where he does not deny he has business of importance to transact.

Mr. Wideman declined to be interviewed concerning his mission to Washington, and when asked whether he was going to institute damage suit on behalf of ex-Queen Liliuokalani, his answer was that he had been accused of that before. His fellow passenger from the island declared that Mr. Wideman's errand is as stated and that he has instructions to go about the matter very quietly and gain as little newspaper notoriety as may be.

THE CUNNIN LITTLE THING.

When baby wakes of morning,
Then it's waken, ye people all
For another day
Of song and play
Has come at our darling's call
And all the good day long
She makes the welkin ring
And she won't keep still till she's had her fill—
The cunnin little thing!

When baby goes a-walking,
Oh, how her puddies fly!
For that's the way the babies say
To other folks "by-by."
The trees bend down to kiss her,
And the birds in rapture sing,
As there she stands and waves her hands—
The cunnin little thing!

When baby goes a-rooking
In her bed at close of day,
At hide and seek
On her dainty cheek
The dreams and the dimples play.
Then it's sleep in the tender kisses
The guardian angels bring
From the far above to my sweetest love—
You cunnin little thing!

RUB THE OTHER EYE.

Good Advice of an Engineer Regarding the Removal of Cinders.

Nine persons out of every ten with a cinder or any foreign substance in the eye will instantly begin to rub the eye with one hand while hunting for the handkerchief with the other. They may and sometimes do remove the offending cinder, but more frequently they rub until the eye becomes inflamed, blind, a handkerchief around the head and go to bed. This is all wrong. The better way is not to rub the eye with the cinder in it at all, but rub the other eye as vigorously as you like, according to a writer in The Medical Summary, who relates the following experience:

"A few years since I was riding on the engine of a fast express. The engineer threw open the front window, and I caught a cinder that gave me the most excruciating pain. I began to rub the eye with both hands. 'Let your eye alone and rub the other eye' (this from the engineer). I thought he was chaffing me and worked the harder. 'I know you doctors think you know it all, but if you will let the eye alone and rub the other one the cinder will be out in two minutes,' persisted the engineer.

"I began to rub the other eye. Soon I felt the cinder down near the inner canthus and made ready to take it out. 'Let it alone and keep at the well eye,' shouted the doctor pro tem. I did so for a minute longer, and looking in a small glass he gave me found the offender on my cheek. Since then I have tried it many times and have advised many others and have never known it to fail in one instance unless it was as sharp as a piece of steel or something that cut into the ball and required an operation to remove it."

A Queer Marriage Ceremony.

A queer marriage ceremony was that in Queen Elizabeth's reign, before the dead and dumb alphabet was invented, between Thomas Pilsley and Ursula Bridget. Ursula could talk fast enough, but Thomas was a deaf mute, and as it was required that promises should be exchanged in spoken words nobody knew how to manage the thing. Finally the bishop of London helped to devise a service by signs, and Thomas proceeded thus:

Having first taken Ursula in his arms, he took her by the hand and put the nuptial ring on her finger. He then laid his right hand significantly on his heart, and afterward, putting his palms together, extended both his hands toward heaven. Having thus sued for divine blessing, he declared his purpose to live with Ursula till death should separate them by closing his eyelids with his fingers, digging the earth with his feet as though he wished to make a hole in the ground and then moving his arms and body as though he were tolling a funeral bell.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Honey From Lump Sugar.

To make it take a quantity of lump sugar, remembering that your vessel (a preserving kettle is best) must be large, as the sirup boils up at one stage of the process and is apt to run over and catch fire. Pour on the sugar a little water, enough to melt to a sirup when hot. Boil and skim till clear, when drop in for two quarts as much powdered alum as you can pile on a dime. The alum is to prevent the sugar from granulating. Be ready to lift the kettle off the fire quickly, as the alum causes the sirup to froth up very high. Boil until it becomes of the consistency and the color of strained honey, when add a teaspoonful of Jamaica ginger, stir thoroughly and set to cool.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Married Schoolteachers.

Married women can still be appointed to positions in the Milwaukee public schools. At the meeting of the executive committee of the school board Aug. 3 the movement was defeated which attempted to discourage matrimony on the part of the teachers of the Milwaukee public schools, in that it proposed the retirement from the force of teachers of all married women who had husbands upon whom they could depend for support and the nonemployment in the future of married women as teachers.

Central Asia Tales.

The English tale of "Cinderella" is found in the Siberian tale of "Papallaga," in the German tale of "Aschenputtel" and in the fable of La Fontaine about the milkmaid and her pail. The legend of "Beauty and the Beast" is also found in the myths of the Hindoo, Greek and Norseman. All of these tales had a common origin in central Asia.—New York Sun.

To tell our own secrets is generally folly, but that folly is without guilt. To communicate those with which we are intrusted is always treachery, and treachery for the most part combined with folly.—Johnson.

Dwarf Hudson.

The most noted dwarf was Jeffery Hudson, born in 1819. At the age of 8 he was 18 inches high and was served upon the table in a gold pipe as a present to Charles I. At the age of 30 he began to grow and reached the height of 3 feet 9 inches. He lived to be 68 and died in prison, having been arrested on suspicion of being concerned in the popish plot.

NINE HE COMES.

"One I love, and two I love,
Three I love," she's saying,
And around the maiden's lips
Tender smiles are playing.
"Four I love with all my heart,
Five and six—and seven—
Surely to me long his heart
Hath been fondly given!"
"Here I find another seed,
Eight both loves, I know it,
And still another. Nine he comes—
I find just here below it!"
Softly doth the shadow lie
Over all the grasses,
And the light wind whispers low
As through the trees it passes.
In the sky the cloud flees flies,
Pursued by sun ray kisses,
For they are too cold to thrill
With love's delicious blisses.
But there cometh through the mead
The maiden's blithe young lover,
Comes—and then the apple seed
Many truths discover.

AN AID TO MILKING.

The College's Advice to His Father Which Resulted Disastrously.

A college student in one of our western states returned home after his course was finished to find that his father, a clergyman with a small salary, was eking out his living by running a small farm. One of the adjuncts of the farm was a cow, a pretty good animal, which, however, had a strong aversion to being milked.

There was an opportunity for a display of the lately acquired knowledge of the juvenile collegian.

"Father," said he, "Professor G. says if one will place a weight upon a cow's back it will make her give down the milk."

The reverend gentleman, favorably impressed with this information that his son had learned from Professor G., decided to try the simple remedy. Instead, however, of placing a weight upon the cow's back, the clergyman placed himself upon it. But then he answered the purpose. The cow, however, was still obstinate.

"The cow under the cow," said the father to his son.

The son did so. But the cow, unused to such unusual and arbitrary proceedings, manifested her displeasure by rearing and plunging, entirely unmindful of the dignity of the personage astride her spinal column. It was getting altogether too interesting for the two bipeds concerned in the transaction.

"Get the rope, out the rope!" shouted Mr. V. to his dutiful son, meaning the rope by which he was attached to the cow.

But the son, being somewhat excited, cut the rope by which the cow was fastened to the stallion. At once afterward the cow took an unceremonious exit from the stable, and down through the street she went. The minister accompanied the cow, but in a manner not exactly befitting the dignity of his profession.

As it happened, one of the sisters of the congregation was on the street as the race was in progress. Surprised at such a sight, the good sister cried out, "Why, Brother V., where are you going?"

His sense of the ludicrous coming to his aid, Brother V. shouted back: "The Lord and the cow only know, I don't!"

The clergyman was eventually rescued from his awkward perch and never attempted the feat again.—Voice.

Well Done.

One of the most unique specimens of the courting crisis on record occurred at a London dinner party. He had long loved to love her, and while at the table he learned from a friend sitting next to him that his rival intended to "pop the question" that very day. What was to be done? He was some distance from her, while the dearest rival was at her side. Tearing a leaf from a notebook, he wrote on it with a pencil: "Will you be my wife? Write your answer, yes or no, on this paper and return it to me." This he sent to her by a waiter, saying: "To the lady in blue at the end of the table. Be very careful." This servant was careful enough, but the sender forgot to give him the pencil for the lady to use. She didn't have a pencil, but she coolly put the note into her bosom and answered to the waiter, "Tell the gentleman yes," with as little betrayal of excitement as if she were accepting an invitation to a game of croquet.—London World.

Farming by Irrigation.

The farmer who runs water over his lands has rain when the sun shines, has moisture for his crops when needed and in quantity to suit. It is practical and successful farming. It is the true method. There is no failure, and more returns to the acre. Large areas of wonderfully fertile land in Montana and Washington are already under ditch, and can be had at moderate prices. Government land can be taken up and easily and cheaply watered. Fine chances for investment in canal enterprises. Write to F. J. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., G. N. Ry., St. Paul, Minn., for information.

SHE SPOKE TOO SOON.

Discovering That She Had Made a Mistake, She Apologized.

In front of Trinity church a stylishly dressed young woman stepped from the sidewalk directly in front of a team of heavy horses attached to a well loaded truck. She was endeavoring to catch the eye of a cable car grippon and did not see the rapidly moving truck bearing down upon her. Passively expected to see her ground to earth, but one of two fashionably appearing young fellows with slightly drollish proclivities rushed to the curb, and lifting the woman by the arms quickly swung her around and landed her out of danger on the sidewalk.

She, all unconscious of her dangerous predicament, turned on the young man sharply with an indignant, "How dare you, sir!" and looked as if she were contemplating an assault on him with her parasol.

The young fellow looked surprised, and then, taking off his hat, bowed and, with an "Excuse me, madam," passed on with his friend.

She turned toward the street again and for the first time observed the truck, which now stood in her path. The driver of this calmly remarked: "That dude saved your life, lady. Why don't you scratch his eyes out?"

The woman, for the first time realizing her narrow escape, hurried after the rapidly disappearing youths, who had nearly reached Rector street by that time. Touching her rescuer's arm, she quickly apologized for her rudeness and thanked him for his timely act.

"Don't mention it, please. The pleasure is entirely mine, I assure you," was the response. Two hats were doffed, and the blessing woman was left on the sidewalk with a humiliating sense of her previous rudeness.

"Beautifully queer things these girls are, Harvey," said one to the other as they disappeared in the arcade leading to the L station.—New York Advertiser.

The famous John Randolph of Roanoke, as he was called in his day, once met, while walking on a narrow pavement, a political opponent of his.

The man pushed rudely against Mr. Randolph with his elbow, saying as he did so, "I never make way for scoundrels."

"I do," said John Randolph, stepping to one side and making his most courteous bow, as he allowed the man to pass.—"Cyclopedia of Anecdotes."

LIVELY FIGHT WITH A SHARK.

Terrifying Experience With a Man Eater by a Man Who Was Fishing.

William Muller, an attorney of Denison, Tex., had an experience with a man eating shark at Rockport in the Gulf. "I hired a small sailboat," said Mr. Muller in relating his unpleasant experience, "and was out some distance from land when I baited my hook and cast it out. I used a new clothesline 100 to 150 feet long for a cord, and the hook was quite large, probably six to seven inches long.

"I felt a jerk, and in an instant the line was under the boat's rudder. I asked the boatman to reverse the sail in order that the line could be cleared. I was oblivious to all except the big fish, and as the boom swung around it caught me on the back between the shoulders. I was tumbled overboard head foremost in the water, some 40 to 50 feet deep. As I struck the water the fish that I had caught, a man eating shark, laid hold of the calf of my right leg. The pain was fearful, and I felt myself jerked rapidly down toward the bottom of the sea.

"In my fall I did not relax my hold on the line, and as soon as I realized my position I knew that my life depended on my ability to hold on to the cord. The struggle I know was not long, but to me it seemed like an age. The cord was fastened to a beam in the boat, and in a few minutes my antagonist, and as soon as I appeared on the surface the boatman came to my assistance. The shark retained its grip on my leg until my body was entirely out of the water, and even then it did not let go until the boatman knocked it off with an oar. When I was safely on the inside, however, pulled for the shore, and as my hook was securely fastened in the mouth of the shark no trouble was experienced in landing the fish. It was between 5 and 6 feet long."—Chicago Post.

Divorcing.

Mme. Courvenar.

Mme. Courvenar, who has succeeded her late husband as the London Times' representative in the Belgium capital, is best known to the public as Tasma, the novelist. Of Dutch family, she was born in Highgate and was brought up in Tasmania; hence her nom de plume. She first made her name in Europe as a lecturer on emigration in the principal towns of France.

Saved Mrs. Rennie's Life.

Mrs. Jennie Rennie of Virgil, N. Y., had been sick for a year or more with overwork of the gall and ailment of the stomach. Her physician told her she could not live. Mrs. Rennie's mother had found such benefit from the use of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, that she persuaded her daughter to use it, which she did, with the result that it cured her of these diseases, and she says she was never so well as now.
